

Applications Engineer – Machining Focus

What is a Applications Engineer

The Applications Engineer is a professional that assists customers in training, setting up, and programming of both current-generation and vintage CNC Machining and Turning Centers. The Applications Engineer is properly trained and committed learning the newest technologies and techniques to better assist our customers to be competitive in the global manufacturing market—a professional who knows the Allendale culture and Allendale philosophy. Applications Engineers faithfully apply those principles to their profession, at the Company facilities and during applications visits.

Characteristics of an Applications Engineer

- Logical and Critical Thinking
- Excellent communication and presentation skills
- Self-Motivated
- Outgoing Personality
- Willingness to Learn
- Driven by Success

Job Responsibilities of an Applications Engineer

- Travel to customer sites to assist customers in the setup and programming of their machining centers
- Perform cycle time evaluations and runoffs of customer parts to assist in the sales process
- Be proficient and up to date with industry standard CAD/CAM packages
- Stay current with the latest tooling and machining techniques so they can be applied when assisting customers
- Assist service with troubleshooting of customer machines relating to finish and accuracy issues
- Ensure showroom machines continually have new demonstrations showing the latest tools and technologies

Qualifications and Competencies

- Experience with CNC programming and setup
- Strong project management skills
- Ability to work independently and complete projects in allotted time
- Strong written and verbal communication skills
- Must be able to meet and physical requirements of the job including flexible hours and travel through the territory

This job description in no way states or implies that these are the only duties to be performed by an employee occupying this position. Employees may be required to perform other related duties as assigned, to ensure workload coverage. Employees are required to follow any other job-related instructions and to perform any other job-related duties requested by their supervisor. This job description does NOT constitute an employment agreement between the employer and employee, and is subject to change by the employer as the organizational needs and requirements of the job change.

Allendale Machinery Systems, Inc. is an EO Employer-M/F/V/D. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, religion, sex, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity, or any other protected class.

Job Title: Applications Engineer
Business Unit: Applications & Training
Reports to: Applications Manager

Location: Northern, NJ / Long Island
FLSA Status: Exempt Non-Exempt
Supervises: N/A